Rain, wind hammer Midwest

One death reported in Michigan twister

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Spring stirred up tornadoes and flooding across Ohio over the weekend and the National Weather Service warned that today could bring more high water by posting a flash flood watch for southern and central Ohio.

Rain and thunderstorms were forecast for today and tonight with locally heavy rain expected to cause small stream and urban flooding in the southern half of Ohio.

A low pressure system developing in Oklahoma was expected to move through Ohio today and tonight, touching off the showers, which will change to snow flurries Tuesday as a result of cold air drawn in behind the storm.

Highs today were to be in the 50s and 60s, falling into the 40s Tuesday.

Flooding problems eased Sunday as water receded in Holmes County and other sections of eastern Ohio that were affected by Saturday's day-long rainfall, the weather service reported. The most serious weekend tornado swept through northern Ashland County late Saturday on a path that took it through southern Cuyahoga County into Ashtabula County.

The Ashland County Sheriff reported one house was leveled in the community of Bailey Lakes, north of Ashland. Two other homes were damaged slightly and some bricks were torn off an apartment complex, the sheriff reported. Five persons were treated for minor injuries and released.

Civil defense officials estimated storm damage in Bailey Lakes was $1 million.

The twister then moved through Solon and Moreland Heights in Cuyahoga County, damaging a building in Solon and ripping down utility lines and trees in both cities.

In the Cincinnati area, tornadoes touched down in sparsely populated areas in Highland County. Some farm buildings were damaged in the small town of Buford and one motorist reported his car was lifted off the road and dropped facing the opposite direction.

Brown County officials reported high winds, but it was not determined if light damage there was caused by a tornado.

Xenia was included in a tornado watch issued by the National Weather Service late Saturday, on the eve of the third anniversary of the Greene County community's deadly twister.

Saturday's rain dropped more than two and one-third inches of rain in the Dayton area, with several other parts of the state receiving one inch or more.

The runoff caused flooding in Holmes County and less serious problems in Dayton, the Akron-Canton area, and parts of Morgan, Athens and Washington counties.

The nation's midsection was blanketed with wet weather today, with thunderstorms in some areas and forecasts of snow in Kansas, Nebraska and the upper Great Lakes states.

A low pressure center in Oklahoma brought rain and snow to Kansas, while thunderstorms hit Texas, Oklahoma and Arkansas. A warm front reaching from northeast Texas to Georgia also brought thunderstorms that stretch into Tennessee and showers that reach northward into the Ohio Valley and Virginia.

From one to three inches of rain was reported in portions of northern Mississippi. Flash flood watches were in effect in that state as well as sections of Tennessee, southeastern Oklahoma, across southern and central Missouri and into the southern sections of Illinois, Indiana and Ohio.

Travel advisories for rain changing to snow were in effect for northwestern and northern Iowa, western and northern Wisconsin and southeastern Minnesota. A winter storm watch was in force for upper Michigan.

In the southwest, a travelers advisory continued over New Mexico's north east plains and mountains east of the Rio Grande. High wind warnings were in effect for the northern Texas Panhandle and the higher mountain passes of southwest Texas.

"All we have left is what we're wearing," said Steve Kulikowski, one of more than 130 persons who lost homes this weekend as tornadoes hit four Lower Michigan counties.

State and municipal officials estimated damage from the storms at more than $2.5 million.

Kulikowski, 26, like many others, lost home and possessions Saturday when a tornado roared through the Kalamazoo County farming community of Augusta. Damage in Augusta alone was estimated at over $1 million.

"We'd just spent all our money on buying food," he said. "And now the refrigerator's gone."

The heaviest damage was reported in Kalamazoo and Eaton counties. Lesser damage also occurred in Livingston and Oakland counties, authorities said.

The twisters were blamed for the death of one child and injuries to at least 44 other persons. A second death was blamed indirectly on the storm — Donald Merritt, 43, of Eaton Rapids, was electrocuted Sunday as he cleaned up debris.

Law enforcement officials Sunday issued passes to residents and attempted to keep out all but emergency workers because curious motorists hampered cleanup work in a few areas. Crews from Consumers Power Co. said they were unable to reach some downed power lines because traffic blocked roads.

Sheriff Art Kelsey said damage in Eaton County was expected to total more than $1.5 million.

About 100 dwellings were damaged with 13 houses and 9 mobile home destroyed, he said.

The lone fatality in Saturday's tornadoes was Jason McKenzie, 5, of Flint, a passenger in a truck swept from Interstate 69 near Charlotte.

Two hurt as car hits three trees

Two Fayette County men were admitted to Fayette County Memorial Hospital early Sunday morning after the auto in which they were riding went out of control on Jamison Road and struck three trees.

Listed in "fair" condition with back injuries is 24-year-old John Phillips, who resides on Ohio 41. He was a passenger in the car. The driver, Robert J. Elkins Jr., 22, of 678 Robinson Road, is listed in "good" condition.

The Fayette County Sheriff's Department reported that Elkins was eastbound on Jamison Road about 3 a.m. Sunday when the car went off the right side of the road.

The auto reportedly slid along a guardrail and traveled over 600 feet before striking a tree. Then, the auto spun around and traveled another 50 feet striking a second tree. The auto, then, spun around for a second time and struck a third tree 20 feet away. The trees were located on property owned by Paul W. Dowler, 834 Jamison Road.

Both men were taken to the Fayette County Memorial Hospital emergency room by the Fayette County Life Squad.

The Fayette County Sheriff's Department noted that traffic charges are pending in the mishap.

Six other auto accidents were reported by area law enforcement agencies over the weekend.

Solons start fleeing capital for Easter holiday vacations

WASHINGTON (AP) — The annual congressional Easter Parade gets under way late this week when the 535 members of Congress head home for a 10-day recess.

But before they leave, a few items remain to be cleared from the agendas of the House and Senate, including a bill to change the way members of Congress get their pay raises, a measure designed to clamp down on the methods used by bill collectors and a visit by Henry Kissinger.

The former secretary of state was scheduled today to make his first appearance as a witness before a congressional committee since he left office with the Ford administration.

Kissinger agreed to appear before the Senate subcommittee on energy conservation and regulation in his capacity as chairman of the advisory board of the Alliance to Save Energy, a citizens panel formed recently to promote energy conservation.

The House is likely to face a vote on an attempt to require Congress to vote affirmatively in order for any future pay raise to take effect. The raise that took effect in February was approved when neither the House nor the Senate rejected it.

The pay raise plan is part of a bill to renew emergency jobless aid for more than 500,000 long-term jobless persons in 31 states.

The jobless benefit portion of the bill would provide an additional 13 weeks of federal unemployment benefits to persons who have exhausted the 39 weeks assistance available under regular programs. The extended benefits would be available to long-term unemployed in states where the jobless rate is at least 5 per cent.

The House had passed the jobless bill, but when it reached the Senate, Sen. Dewey Bartlett, R-Okla., succeeded in attaching an amendment changing the pay raise procedure. A Bartlett proposal to repeal the February raise was voted down.

The bill then went to a Senate-House conference committee where the pay raise amendment was dropped. But House Republicans jumped at the chance to embarrass the Democratic majority and threatened to make an issue of the conference committee action. The committee quickly reconvened and restored the pay raise amendment.

Meanwhile, the committee investigating the assassinations of John F. Kennedy and Martin Luther King Jr., continues its work with House approval for an extended life.

Rep. Richardson Preyer, D-N.C., a member of the panel, which has been making more headlines with its internal problems than with its investigation, told reporters he hopes the committee can concentrate on its work and "drop out of your sights for several months."

Judges get 'life term'

WEST ORANGE, N.J. (AP) — Two Essex County Court judges have started serving life sentences together.

When Judge Marilyn Loftus of Verona and Judge F. Michael Caruso of Newark exchanged wedding vows this weekend, it marked the first time two members of New Jersey's judiciary had married each other.

Their cake was decorated with scales of justice. Desserts served to family, friends and members of court staffs were shaped like gavels.

The bride said Saturday she still will be known as Marilyn Loftus professionally, but she did not know what name she would use privately.

Her husband said that "for the time being she is Loftus-Carusos. We will worry about it later on."

Demos set to push vote reform

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Senate is expected to vote this week on a far-reaching election reform bill Democrats have wanted for years but until now lacked the votes to pass.

Its most controversial feature, election day registration of voters, has the two political parties sharply divided but there is little minority Republicans can do.

Republican senators offered a series of unsuccessful amendments last week in committee to delete what they call "instant registration" and make other changes in the bill which greatly liberalizes present law.

However, the GOP and its veteran secretary of state, Ted W. Brown, have called for some changes in current statutes, a great deal more than they would have considered in earlier years.

With Democrats having the votes in both houses to override the vetoes of Republican Gov. James A. Rhodes, GOP lawmakers decided to endorse some change, although "grudgingly," as Senate Minority Leader Michael J. Malone, R-7 Cincinnati, put it.

Basically, the Democrats see their party doing better with larger turnouts of voters while Republicans want little done to the present system. They traditionally get their people to the polls and stand to benefit from lower overall turnouts.

President Carter barely carried Ohio last November, and two years earlier, Republicans closed ranks and attracted enough Democrats and independents to oust a Democratic governor—even though the GOP can claim only about 20 per cent of Ohio's eligible voters.

The pending Democratic reforms and the GOP positions as follows:

Election Day Registration
Democrats: Provide that a voter may register at the polls by showing his driver's license or other acceptable form of identification, such as a state approved identification card.

Republicans: Steadfastly opposed, claiming that the procedure will invite widespread fraud and confusion, allowing voters to cast ballots more than once and otherwise result in long lines at the polls. They deny Democratic claims that strong penalties will be a sufficient deterrent to fraud.

Post Card Registration

Democrats: Provide that voters may register on post card forms obtained at county boards of election and prescribed by the secretary of state. They plan an amendment under which an individual could obtain no more than 15 cards, all of which would have to be returned, completed or not. Groups and organizations apparently could obtain unlimited numbers.

Republicans: Claim the procedure would open another opportunity for fraud. They point out that groups could request huge numbers of cards around the state, potentially disrupting the registration process and question the effectiveness of keeping track of cards.

Door-To-Door Registration

Democrats: Provide for party workers and representatives of other organizations to travel door-to-door, signing up voters who then would not have to travel to a county election board or branch office, as they presently must, at least 30 days before an election, to register.

Republicans: Opposed, claiming there are not enough safeguards against fraud, and that door-to-door registration is not needed with election day registration and others parts of the bill. They said they could support reducing the present deadline from 30 to 21 days.

Permanent Registration

Democrats: Would provide that when a person registered, he would be registered the remainder of his life as long as his residence remained unchanged. Currently, voters' names are dropped from the rolls after they have failed to vote for two years.

Republicans: Against permanent registration, but would support a provision for a purge of names every four years. They claim it would be next to impossible to keep master lists of voters up to date, despite vital statistics reporting requirements contained in the bill.

Statewide Registration

Democrats: Provide that all of Ohio's 88 counties keep voter registration lists. Twenty-two counties presently do not, and four have only partial registration.

Republicans: Generally support, although some from rural counties which lack registration currently have voted against it in earlier bills. Secretary of state supports.

Deputy Registrar Registration

Democrats: Provide that voters may register at any of the deputy motor vehicle registrar offices which sell licenses around the state.

Republicans: Generally do not object.

Sen. Thomas A. Van Meter, R-19 Ashland, offered two successful amendments in the Senate committee, with which Democrats agreed.

They provided for pre-registered voters to go to the head of the line in polling places where voters were being registered, and called for the posting of criminal penalties inside polling places.

Penalties in the bill range from six months and a $1,000 fine for the broadly defined crime of "election falsification" to a possible five years and $2,500 for registering under more than one name.

Kurfess seeks governorship

BOWLING GREEN, Ohio (AP) — Saying he expects the field to be wide open, House Minority Leader Charles F. Kurfess has announced he will seek the Republican nomination for governor in 1978.

The Perrysburg Republican said Saturday he believes GOP Gov. James A. Rhodes will not seek another term and former U.S. Atty. Gen. William B. Saxbe is not interested in the job.

"I'm not out picking a fight with the governor whatsoever," Kurfess said. "I don't think he's going to run, but that's a decision he's going to have to make."

Kurfess said he talked about his race with Saxbe, a popular Republican vote-getter who has been mentioned as a possible candidate, and Saxbe expressed no interest in seeking the governorship.

Speaking to a group of supporters in Bowling Green, Kurfess said he considers himself as qualified as anyone who has expressed an interest in running for the state's highest office.

"This is early, I recognize that," said Kurfess, whose name won't be on the ballot until the June 3, 1978, primary election. "But we've got to do it early."

The highest ranking House

CHARLES KURFESS

Republican cited departure of residents and business from Ohio as a major problem facing the state. And he blamed what he called an antibusiness sentiment in the General Assembly for causing some of the problem.

Nation's farmers seek loans, credits

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — With spring planting nearing, American farmers are concerned about securing loans and operating credit to cover the mounting costs of seeds, fertilizer, tractors and hired hands, a 50-state survey shows.

"It's obvious that the major problem for farmers across the nation will be paying for the various inputs (needed for planting)," said Dick Knight of the federal-state Crop and Livestock Reporting Service. "It appears that the agricultural materials are available if you can pay the price."

The survey of agriculture officials was compiled at the request of Mississippi Agriculture Commissioner Jim Buck Ross.

Ross, who chairs the energy and farm supply committee of the National Association of State Departments of Agriculture, asked for information about elements critical to planting.

Twelve of the responding states said operating loans were hard to get, and 15 states said funds for farm improvements were scarce.

"If the farmer has good collateral he can get credit," said G.F. Vaughn of the state Agriculture Department. "But in some states, Mississippi in particular, disastrous crop years mean many farmers have used up all the equity in land and equipment, and they are in very bad shape trying to find credit."

Drought in the Grain Belt states and far West are causing additional financial problems for farmers, the researchers added.

Raw materials, while in short supply in some areas, appeared sufficient nationwide, according to the study which analyzed the nation by districts.

But tight supplies and shortages of some items such as nitrogen-enriched fertilizer were blamed by the researchers for rising costs.

The price of a sack of fertilizer has climbed 64 per cent since 1973, the researchers said. The cost of other farm chemicals has risen some 48 per cent in the same period.

The survey showed that other areas where costs have climbed sharply included farm equipment, seed, farm supplies and farm labor.

Air crash victims' remains home

DOVER, Del. (AP) — With what a Pan Am official said was "all the respect and dignity possible," the remains of 326 victims of the world's worst air disaster arrived at the Dover Air Force Base mortuary for identification.

A team of 90 Air Force, Army and FBI experts today begins its analysis of the bodies of persons killed in the collision of two Boeing 747 jets March 27 in the Canary Islands.

A base spokesman said that, once identified, the bodies probably would be turned over to a team of local funeral directors. They then will be shipped to the victims' families, most of them in California.

The remains flown here Sunday were of passengers aboard a Pan Am jet rammed by a Dutch KLM plane on the runway of the airport at Santa Cruz de Tenerife. The collision killed more than 570 people.

The KLM passengers and crew, all of whom were killed, were flown to the Netherlands for identification.

William Waltrip, Pan Am vice president in charge of operations, said he was confident all the victims would be identified, although many of the bodies are badly burned and mangled.

A spokesman for the airline said the work of the 90 pathologists, dentists, blood specialists, radiologists and fingerprint experts was expected to take a week or more.

An interdenominational memorial service was held Sunday when the bodies arrived at the base airfield on two Pan Am freighters. During the service, two draped and flower-laden coffins, representative of the hundreds still inside the planes, were placed in waiting hearses. With representatives of the airline looking on, a Catholic priest, a Protestant minister and a rabbi made short statements.

The wooden coffins containing the other bodies then were transported to the mortuary.

Waltrip said the airline was doing all it could to assure "respect and dignity" during the process.

He said although Pan Am had arranged to use a military facility and government manpower for the identification operation, the airline would pay all costs.

He added that it also was customary for airlines to handle funeral costs for crash victims, but said no estimate on the total outlay was yet available.

Carter, Sadat seek path to peace

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jimmy Carter and Anwar Sadat, two deeply religious men of rural origin, will try to find out whether they have a common approach toward settling the Arab-Israeli conflict.

Today's White House session between the U.S. and Egyptian presidents follows a traditional arrival ceremony for Sadat, the first Arab leader to confer with President Carter.

Both already are on record as believing 1977 is a unique year for negotiations.

Sadat told reporters in Paris on Sunday before flying here:

"This is one of the most suitable moments in history for solving the very difficult and very complicated problem of the Middle East."

The Egyptian president earlier said he expects to hit it off with Carter.

"I believe we have many things in common," Sadat said, "as people who come from the village, who emerged from the people, and who have our strong belief in God and religious ethics."

Sadat arrived at nearby Andrews Air Force Base on Sunday night. He was greeted by a delegation headed by Secretary of State Cyrus Vance. Vance rode with Sadat to Blair House, the official government guest residence across Pennsylvania Avenue from the White House.

Over the weekend an apparent divergence surfaced between Sadat and Jordan's King Hussein on the timing for a Geneva peace conference. Hussein told reporters in Aman on Saturday night that the Arab states need more time to work out a united delegation, including Palestine Liberation Organization elements.

Sadat, on the other hand, has insisted on an immediate resumption of the peace conference, which Carter hopes can be undertaken before the end of this year.

Carter already has met with Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin, a visit that produced a series of disclosures by the President on his own outline for a settlement.

These included a "homeland" for Palestinian refugees as well as "defensible borders" for Israel.

Jerry Brown mum on future plans

SAUSALITO, Calif. (AP) — Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., who made a strong showing against President Carter in Democratic primaries last year, says he has "on the back burner" the question whether he still has presidential ambitions.

In an interview Sunday with Martin Agronsky on television station KQED, Brown said running again is "not now in the forefront of my mind. My principal concern right now is governing California."

He added, "I have a job. I have a responsibility. I try to discharge it. What happens after that, assuming I'm around to reap that particular reward (the presidency), time will tell."

David Cassidy muffs marriage

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Rock singer David Cassidy, apparently as flustered as any groom, delayed his wedding to actress Kay Lenz. He forgot the marriage license.

The couple was married Sunday in a brief ceremony at one of Las Vegas' commercial marriage chapels, but only after a driver retrieved the marriage license from a hotel.

"It was painless," Cassidy, 26, said of the ceremony as he and his 24-year-old bride jumped into a limousine following the $35 service at the Little Church of the West.

Cassidy gained fame in the early 1970s for his role in the "Partridge Family" television series.

Miss Lenz has had roles in the ABC television novels "Rich Man, Poor Man" and "Rich Man, Poor Man, Part II."

Officers check injury report

A 10-year-old Fayette County boy was injured Sunday afternoon when a firecracker went off in his right hand. Fayette County sheriff's deputies reported Gregg Browder, 5701 Ohio 41-SE, found the firecracker in an old truck and lit it. He was taken to Fayette County Memorial Hospital where he was treated for burned fingers and released.

Card of Thanks

I would like to thank all of my friends and relatives who sent cards and flowers during my stay at Fayette Memorial Hospital. Special thanks to Dr. Shaw, Dr. Heiny, and the nurses and aides on the 300 Wing.

Stock list turns mixed

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was mixed today, hesitating after Friday's rally.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was down a fraction in early trading.

The over-all count of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues showed gainers ahead of losers by about a 3-2 spread.

Analysts said traders seemed doubtful about the staying power of the rally on Friday, coming as it did on light trading volume.

They also pointed to a monthly survey by the National Association of Purchasing Management which found that prices for raw materials used in manufacturing spurred upward in March.

Today's early prices included Exxon, down 1/4 at 50 3/4; General Electric, down 1/2 at 49 3/4; and American Telephone & Telegraph, steady at 63 1/2.

On Friday the Dow Jones industrial average rose 8.23 to 927.36, cutting its loss for the week to 1.50 points.

Gainers outnumbered losers by better than a 2-1 margin on the NYSE.

Big Board volume reached 17.05 million shares, against 16.51 million on Thursday.

The NYSE's composite index climbed 41 to 53.94.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .80 at 111.97.

'Worst disaster' hindsight

One disturbing aspect of aviation's worst disaster, the collision of two jumbo jets on a runway in the Canary Islands, is that comparatively little expert attention has been focused on the chances of such a smashup. Perhaps this is only natural: one experts plane accidents in the air, not on the ground.

Five years ago the National Transportation Safety Board set itself this problem: how would air crash investigators handle the collision of two fully loaded Boeing 747s over New York City? The man then in charge recalls that while strong measures to prevent such an accident were stressed, "nobody looked to the ground: nobody ever thought about it happening there." Hindsight suggests that this needs more attention. Because now it has happened.

Investigators are trying to find out why. Other questions are raised, too — some prompted by realization that the planes might have collided in flight, with even greater loss of life.

Is air traffic control adequate for an era of fast planes carrying hundreds of passengers? Are such aircraft equipped with the best possible collision-avoidance instruments? Could fuel systems be made more "crashworthy," and the fuel more resistant to fire? Could smoke and noxious gases from the burning of cabin interiors be reduced?

The frequency of near-misses in the air points up the need for further air traffic control improvements. The goal of universal installation of devices to avert collisions is far from being achieved. The Army reports "phenomenal" success in cutting down on helicopter fires through use of a stronger fuel system — which is not used in passenger planes. There have been good results with fire-retardant fuel additives — not used in commercial aviation fuel.

More could be done to prevent crashes and safeguard the lives of passengers. The Canary Islands disaster underscores the urgency of doing it.

WASHINGTON CALLING....By Marquis Childs

Gov. Brown's come a long way

SACRAMENTO — The Jerry Brown of today is quite another Jerry Brown from the young novice who came into the governor's office two years ago. His was then a nonpolitical image and we all came out from the East to write about this 37-year-old who looked with rather amused detachment at being chief executive of the largest state in the union.

Now he comes on as a hard-charger. Affairs of state appear to be uppermost in the mind of Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. After all, the election is only two years away and no one here doubts that he will run for a second term.

In the presidential primaries last year he had the enviable record of winning six out of six. The fresh young man from the West had to talk very little about issues.

Robert Strauss, then chairman of the Democratic National Committee, said privately that if Brown, a late starter, had begun 30 days earlier he would have won the Democratic nomination for president and Brown is inclined to agree. Pennsylvania, yes, Ohio, yes, and that would have been enough.

To turn on the hard-charger you have only to repeat to him what many of his critics out here say: You talk a lot, but you have done very little about what needs to be done in California.

His reply comes out with a rush of his accomplishments, ranging from the state labor relations act to the California Conservation Corps. And he has a raft of figures to show that California is the fastest-growing state in employment next to Texas with the rate of unemployment 7.8 per cent as against around 10 per cent when he came into office.

Gov. Brown says that without the labor act the agreement between Caesar Chavez and Frank Fitzsimmons of the Teamsters Union over the organizing of farm workers would not have been possible.

The agreement signed the other day ended 10 years of feuding with widespread violence as Chavez — with national support — held out for the rights of his workers, many of whom were Chicanos.

Brown is building up a substantial record on the appointment of women and blacks and that will be an important asset, he believes, when he runs two years from now. In one conspicuous instance he put his Republican rival in 1978, Atty. Gen. Evelle Younger, in a tight spot.

Brown had nominated for Chief Justice of the State Supreme Court 40-year-old Rose Elizabeth Bird who — following her legal experience, which included teaching at the Stanford University law school — has for two years been Brown's Secretary of Agriculture and Services.

But the nomination had to be passed on by the three-member State Commission on Judicial appointments. Younger, a member of the commission, was put in the position of casting the deciding vote for Miss Bird.

Younger did this in spite of stiff opposition from Republicans. A spokesman for the right wing of the party said they could never vote for Younger if he voted for Bird. At the same time, just to tidy things up, Brown named a black, Wiley Manuel, to be an associate justice on the court.

With Ronald Reagan lurking in the background and his lieutenants muttering that he intends to run for president again in 1980, Younger will not have an easy task. But he is a powerful campaigner, making much of the law-and-order issue in a state racked by crime.

Brown, as I talked with him, was leaving to preside over the graduation of the first class of the California Conservation Corps. Eventually there will be 18 CCC training centers taking in blacks, whites, men, women. When they finish their training they will go to work on various natural resource projects.

Brown gave Carter comparatively little help in the campaigning in this state last fall and his indifferent behavior at the Madison Square Garden convention was hardly likely to make them bosom pals.

But when Brown was in Washington Carter invited him to stay at the White House and sleep overnight in the Lincoln bed. That was a gesture of goodwill that could overcome some of the chill that has existed between them.

The governor has no illusions about the seriousness of the drought from which California is suffering. It underscores his belief that the American people must realize that there are limits to growth. Limits, he says with the emphasis of one who has looked at the human predicament out of his long Jesuit training.

If Brown is daunted by what lies ahead, and in the gloomiest perspective it is grim indeed, he shows no sign of it. Bloodied in the rough-and-tumble of very rough politics, Brown is no longer an amateur.

Defiance County was laid out in 1840 between Williams and Paulding Counties, thus breaking the original map plan in which Williams, Paulding and Van Wert Counties, named for the three captors of Maj. Andre in the Revolutionary War, were to join each other. —AP

Students discover wonders of nature

MENTOR, Ohio (AP) — Every boy and girl in Marilyn Fais' fifth grade class can identify a yellow bellied sapsucker and a tufted titmouse.

Rather than swatting the wasps that occasionally buzz through an open window on a spring day, they capture them under glass and carefully take them back outside. A lost spider that wanders into class gets similar treatment.

Students have been known to bring snakes into class, but only for a day or two.

"We must always return every living creature to its natural habitat," she often reminds her class.

Most often that is somewhere in the 17 acres of woods that surround Headlands Elementary School where Mrs. Fais teaches.

That is where students often roam when they show up at school early to accompany Mrs. Fais on one of her almost daily nature walks.

Everything from plants that grow on the windowsill of her classroom to the creatures of nature that are brought in or come on their own, she says, is borrowed from nature.

The students spot the sapsuckers, titmouses and other creatures of nature at a homemade feeder outside one classroom window.

Sometimes early in the morning before students arrive or in the quiet of the empty room after they leave, Mrs. Fais says she sings a 19th century rhyme she learned as a child:

"All things bright and beautiful;
All creatures great and small;
All things wise and wonderful;
The Lord God made them all."

She calls it her motto and and her classroom reflects her awareness of the environment.

This year, her class has its own tree—a mature mountain ash they bought with $100 raised by last year's class by selling a bicentennial quilt they made in school.

This year, students made a rug from rags and donated it to the Cleveland Museum of Natural History.

Another rug is now underway. It will be raffled and the money used for another, as yet unidentified, class project.

"Teaching school is so great", Mrs. Fais said. "It gives you a chance to do the things which will develop in the children lifelong interests and appreciation for the environment."

Says Indians have a good deal

DEAR ABBY: You and SENSITIVE AND SAD can put away your guilt feelings about the American Indians.

I have lived on an Indian reservation for the past 25 years, and find NO injustice or cruelty, unless it is to the non-Indians who live in states where reservations are located.

All Indians are citizens of the United States, and although they receive all privileges any other citizen enjoys, they do not contribute for any of these privileges!

In 1975, it cost the U.S. taxpayer $10,000 for each Indian family. At the present expanding rate, it will be $20,000 per family by 1980. Indians get FREE medical, hospital, dental and optical care from birth to death. They pay no state taxes on homes, cars, land, personal property or income. They may hunt and fish around the year-no bag limit, no license. They can receive FREE education from Head Start to PH. D.'s. They are given preferences on jobs; some ads read, "tribal members only need apply." They get wells drilled, sanitary facilities installed on ranches, farms and homes away from municipal facilities. All FREE. The list is endless.

Already in 1977, this reservation has received $2,600,000 in grants from HUD for 2500 members living here. This is over $1,000 for each man, woman, and child. This is over above the other programs. They have more than a $4 million income from power sites, timber sales and grazing fees.

Where else in the world can you get all this free, at taxpayers expense? So, rejoice; the Indians are doing O.K. Wish we had it so good.

ENVOIOUS ON THE RESERVATION

DEAR ENVOIOUS: You choose to submerge all feelings of sadness and guilt about the white man's treatment of the American Indian as a result of your observation during the past 25 years. And whether your observation tell a complete, accurate story of the 650,000 Indians that today live on 275 Indian reservations is a question upon which my readers may want to comment. (P.S. If you will send me your name and address, I will forward to you some of the mail that I expect.)

DEAR ABBY: We live in one of the best neighborhoods in town. There is not one house on our block worth less than $75,000. Some new neighbors moved in next door, and I understand they bought the house for the asking price and paid CASH.

They seem very nice, but they are weird. The first thing we noticed was that they didn't have a television antenna, so my little boy asked their little boy about it, and he was told they didn't have a television set!

They have only one automobile (and a two-car garage!) and the father drives the car to work every day. The children and mother all use the bus. They rarely go anywhere, except to church. The wife doesn't have any fancy clothes or jewelry or furs. The children aren't permitted to have any toys dealing with war or violence. Could they belong to some offbeat religious cult? What do you make of them?

CURIOUS

DEAR CURIOUS: Maybe they've just got cash, conservative standards, high moral principles and pacifistic ideas.

They sound like ideal neighbors to me.

ACONFIDENTIAL TO S.S. IN SIOUX CITY: If your man keeps you cool in the summer and warm in the winter, stocks a plentiful cupboard, comes home sober right after work without having folded, spindles or mutilated his paycheck, you've got a prince. Take good care of him.

TUESDAY, APRIL 5

ARIES

(March 21 to April 20)

Leave no loose ends in matters nearing completion and don't start ventures you may regret later. Look up past records, returns, in planning present procedures.

TAURUS

(April 21 to May 21)

Fine aspects encourage clever action, but don't set up hazards for yourself through haste, superfluous moves, nonfruitful activities.

GEMINI

(May 22 to June 21)

Avoid extremes. Hold the line against confusion and chaos. Seek experienced counsel if stymied in any undertaking.

CANCER

(June 22 to July 23)

The ambitious Cancerian should find this day a most challenging one. Be ready for new opportunities, new beginnings, new incentive.

LEO

(July 24 to Aug. 23)

Being a natural leader, others now look to you for guidance, incentive. Supply both generously. They will be grateful and you will reap compensating reward.

VIRGO

(Aug. 24 to Sept. 23)

Be master of your thinking rather than let it set you off on tangents which get you nowhere. Success can come through certain new alliances.

LIBRA

(Sept. 24 to Oct. 23)

This day brings brand new opportunities to use your talents, to expand and benefit in various ways. Do make the most of it!

SCORPIO

(Oct. 24 to Nov. 22)

You can MAKE the spotlight shine on you if you watch your step, put forth best efforts and project hope and confidence. There is a tendency to vacillate, however. Counteract — with steadfastness.

SAGITTARIUS

(Nov. 23 to Dec. 21)

Give of your know-how and experience and express your opinions if asked but, in the doing, avoid being critical or patronizing. Emphasize the positive.

CAPRICORN

(Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)

You may have a tendency toward lethargy now. Don't yield to it, since the best intentions in the world will produce nothing if not followed up by solid, constructive effort.

AQUARIUS

(Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)

Just as the Capricornian, you, too, may have to discipline yourself sternly to keep on the road to accomplishment. Be especially careful not to lose self-control if certain persons annoy you.

PISCES

(Feb. 20 to Mar. 20)

Be patient if temporarily stymied in some project in which you are involved. Some new factors may be up for consideration. Keep eyes and ears open!

YOU BORN TODAY are a natural leader. Your dynamic personality and terrific gift of showmanship make people follow you — and work for you — almost hypnotically. Thus, you must be extremely careful about WHERE you are leading. You may be attracted to the theater and, if so, you should succeed in almost any of its branches — acting, producing, managing, playwrighting, etc. But it's on the stage itself that you would shine, for you truly have "star" quality. Other fields in which your talents could bring great success: writing, lecturing, selling, politics and medicine.

Hat Parade Filled to the Brim with Variety

EASY, CASUAL and fun to wear, hats for spring and summer range from outsize straws for day to sleekly draped bright turbans and flowered brims for evening. The new shapes are mixable and matchable and wearable with everything from the bare look of a tube to fuller floral skirt or the hip-blowing shorter line. From left, the ultimate in summer hat chic is captured by Bob Greene for Irene of New York in his varicolored draped turban, accented with a cascading streamer at the back. Two-in-one fashion is offered by Frank Olive with the deft melding of two textures in one hat; this casual, sporty shape has a stitched felt brim and a contrasting open-weave crocheted crown. The larger, front-dipped brim hat is a fashion favorite for "occasion" summer wear and Bob Greene for Irene of New York emphasizes the trend with this treatment of royal blue felt, accented with a contrasting white pleated banding at the crown. For dash and flair Mr. John Classics creates a straw version of the flattering up-brim "Aussie" hat; it is of rough white straw with patent trim at the crown and in the chin tie. Multicolored candy stripes lend a mood of summer gaiety to Mr. Martin's down-brim shantung sun shield shape.

WASHINGTON REPORT

From

WILLIAM H. HARSHBARGER
Representative To Congress
6th District, Ohio

The controversy surrounding Paul Warnke's confirmation as President Carter's top negotiator for the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks has focused some needed attention on the military capabilities of America and her allies, as well as Soviet strengths and intentions.

As for the Warnke selection itself, there obviously is room for skepticism. He has opposed new strategic weapons since the Salt I Agreement in 1972, even though the Russians have been engaged in the largest strategic weapons build-up in history.

Arms control is a totally worthy goal for the United States, but it is meaningless without Soviet reciprocation.

One of the most significant indicators of a massive Soviet build-up aimed at decisive military superiority is the dramatic increase in the strength and efficiency of its land forces in Northern and Central Europe.

TV Viewing

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Do yourself a favor. Watch "Six American Families," a new documentary series that starts tonight with a one-hour look at a blue collar, Polish-American clan, the Pasciak family of Chicago.

It's airing on most public TV outlets and five commercial stations the Group W chain owns in San Francisco, Boston, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, and Baltimore. And it's a fine start for this study of the lives of six families of differing backgrounds in six regions of America.

As with the other tribes, the family of sanitation worker Stanley Pasciak — six kids and the parents — let producer-host Paul Wilkes and his camera teams live with them, record their happy and unhappy moments for TV.

As Wilkes put it in an interview last month, the filming had no point of view other than "to show what's going on in this country, what people are about." In tonight's show, it's about a conflict of generations.

The older generation, Pasciak and his wife, Lorraine, still have strong old-country ties, still believe in the old ways of hard work and a close-knit family, have a strong sense of responsibility, of neighborhood.

Pasciak, walking through a lot filled with big white garbage trucks, is content with his life: "Just working here, being the breadwinner of the family, is satisfaction enough for me."

Not so his oldest son, Gary, 21, a budding actor who's chucked the old, secure ways to risk his future in Hollywood, totally convinced — as many like him are — that "I do have talent."

That's his American Dream, even though a younger brother back in Chicago sees it another way: "What he's doing is just like a cartoon..."

The program focuses on the Pasciak at Christmastime, when Gary flies home from Hollywood to visit his friends and family before returning to his quest for fame, fortune, all the Hollywood cliches.

And in a series of well-edited scenes — some argumentative, some happy, some quietly thoughtful — we get good portraits of the family, primarily the parents, Gary and his guitar-playing brother, Gerard, 17.

Mrs. Pasciak seems the most resistant to change, but takes fierce pride in being a mother. Her husband, who comes across as a decent, hard-working man, manages to destroy the stereotype of the working stiff as an inflexible, loud-mouthed Archie Bunker.

He speaks softly, tries to ease tension, not increase it and seems to accept the fact his kids represent changing times, changing attitudes. He doesn't approve, but he doesn't condemn.

The show, which has its flaws, still gives a good, heartening sense of a strong family. Next week's program studies the effect of divorce on an upper middle-class Jewish family in Mill Valley, Calif.

When Charles Dickens visited Cincinnati in 1842, commenting favorably on the city in contrast to his criticism of most Ohio spots, the area had 50,000 people. —AP

'Children's village' idea rapped

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — An Austria-based international child care organization is proposing establishment of a village for homeless children in Ohio, but is finding opposition from some American child care specialists. The organization is SOS Children's Villages, a nonprofit group headquartered in Vienna with 130 children's villages in 59 countries.

It has focused its search for an American location on the Columbus area, but also was to survey Cleveland, Akron, Toledo, Cincinnati, Youngstown and Dayton, Dieter H. Nordbruch, an SOS representative, said.

The village would consist of seven houses for family-type living. Six to eight children of both sexes and a range of ages would live in each house under the direction of an SOS mother. Each house would have kitchen facilities and function as a complete living unit.

Other village staff members would include an administrator, director, community center mother, kindergarten nurse and part-time relief mothers.

The village would accept children of all ages and care for them until adulthood.

The facility would be started with an interest-free $400,000 10-year loan from the Hermann Gmeiner fund and supported by public donations and contributions from foundations, businesses, and civic groups. Gmeiner founded the first village near Imst, Austria, in 1949.

The stumbling block to the project has been disagreement on philosophy on care of homeless children.

"The idea of starting an SOS Children's Village in the United States is inconsistent with good child-welfare practices in our country," Alvin R. Hadley, director of services to family and children for the Franklin County Children Services, said.

Institutionalization of children is the last step in public child care, he said. Preferred steps are reuniting children with parents, adoption by relatives and placement in foster homes, he said.

"It's a basic philosophy that a child has a right to its own home," Hadley said.

The SOS Children's Villages are good for developing countries, but inappropriate for the United States, maintains Joseph Reid, executive director of the Child Welfare League of America.

He said the villages would house children that are hard to place for adoption, such as several children from one family, those with strong emotional disorders, and biracial children.

Storage shed fire checked

A storage shed blaze at 224 Water St. Friday night resulted in $150 damages. The Washington C.H. Fire Department was called to the Maynard Carl residence to extinguish the blaze which was believed to have been started by children playing in the shed.

The building is owned by Louis N.

Baer, 421 E. Market St.

Early Saturday morning, city firefighters were called to 1418 Lindberg Drive on a car fire report. There was no fire in the auto owned by Stella Boyd, Lancaster. However, there was an electric short under the vehicle's dashboard.

Chapter raises $630 for scholarships

Restaurant operation project by MT pupils termed success

The operation of Frisch's Restaurant Washington C.H. by members of the Miami Trace High School National Honor Society chapter Saturday was termed "very successful."

Chapter advisor Fred Doyle said, "I think it was very successful and we exceeded last year's proceeds."

Doyle said a total of $630 was raised by the National Honor Society in the operation of the restaurant. The chapter raised $500 through the restaurant operation project last year.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Mason, owners of the local Frisch's Restaurant, allow chapter members to operate the restaurant and donate all excess profits and tips generated by the project.

The 22 Miami Trace High School students participating in the project underwent several hours of extensive training before Saturday and volunteered their services for 10 hours as waitresses, car hops, bus boys, dishwashers, cashiers and hostesses — everything except the actual preparation of food.

"They did a fantastic job," said Vernon Saxton, manager of Frisch's Restaurant.

This year marked the sixth year that members of the National Honor Society have participated in the project under Doyle's direction. The annual Scholarship Day activity usually adds approximately $500 to the Miami Trace High scholarship fund.

As a result of the Frisch's Restaurant project and other fund-raising activities conducted last week, Doyle said more than $2,500 is expected to be available for college scholarships for deserving Miami Trace High School seniors.

STUDENT WAITRESS — Christy Tarbuton, a senior at Miami Trace High School, served as a waitress for the annual Scholarship Day project at Frisch's Restaurant Saturday.

Lordstown plant loses Vega

LORDSTOWN, Ohio (AP) — General Motors officials at the Lordstown car assembly line say elimination of some of GM's Vega models won't cause a shutdown of the complex assembly line. Instead, they predict that the assembly line will be switched to other models.

Chevrolet recently announced that it is considering consolidating its Vega hatchback and station wagon models with another compact line. This would deprive the Lordstown car assembly line of their main product.

"Right now we plan to follow the current product in until late July or early August," said Jack Roberts, public relations director here. Besides Vegas, Lordstown turns out Pontiac Astres, and on a smaller scale, Chevrolet Monzas and Pontiac Sunbirds.

"I'm quite confident we'll get something after that to replace the Vegas if they are discontinued. Right now we have a wait and see attitude," Roberts said.

Roberts' optimism is based on the potential of the Lordstown complex itself, which includes a van assembly line and a Fisher Body stamping plant.

Some farm costs dip

WASHINGTON (AP) — While farm expenses generally have continued to increase, some items used in the production of crops and livestock have come down a bit from a year or two ago, according to the Agriculture Department.

Over-all, farm expenses rose one-half of 1 per cent from Feb. 15 to March 15, the department reported last week. That put the "prices paid" index at 5 per cent above the mid-March figure of last year.

But agricultural chemicals — including pesticides and fertilizers — have cost less. As of March 15, the report said, the price index for those items was down 11 per cent from April 1976. Some fertilizer products, particularly, were down much sharper than that from last year and also two years ago.

For example, anhydrous ammonia — a major source of nitrogen — was shown at an average of $188 a ton as of March 15, compared with $191 a year ago and $265 two years ago.

The herbicide 2,4-D cost $8.95 a gallon, compared with $10.10 a year ago and $9.72 two years ago, while the insecticide toxaphene was $5.30, $5.87 and $5.80 a gallon in the same time frame.

Over 175 persons attend

Mathison wins $1,000 at C of C 'Fun Night'

The Washington C.H. Area Chamber of Commerce's annual "Fun Night" event attracted more than 175 persons Saturday night in the Mahan Building on the Fayette County Fairgrounds.

The highlight of the event was the "Pot O' Gold" drawing for $1,400 in cash prizes.

William Mathison, plant manager at Cor Tec, Inc., won the $1,000 prize. Mrs. Joseph M. (Bette) Herbert won $300, and Larry Long received a check for $100. Twenty-four other persons received bottles of wine as consolation prizes.

Ticket numbers were recorded on ping pong balls and drawn at random by program chairman James Polk. As the balls were drawn, the corresponding ticket holder was eliminated. The process continued until only the prize winners remained.

A special trophy was awarded to Marvin Arnold, the night's "big loser." Arnold's number was the first of 175 to be eliminated.

The drawing followed a social hour and dinner, during interludes between sessions of dancing. Mrs. Beulah Wagner served roast beef carved to order, and Jack Schrode's one-man band from Dayton entertained and provided dance music. The party concluded at 1 a.m.

There was one other big winner Saturday — the Chamber of Commerce. Although exact figures are not yet available, the Chamber will realize about $1,500 profit on the evening.

A rough financial breakdown of the $4,750 collected by the Chamber shows $1,500 for prizes, $825 for meals, $425 for refreshments, $160 for entertainment, $250 for rental and decoration of the building.

Polk termed the evening "quite successful." He noted that the "losers" seemed to enjoy the outing as much as the winners.

James C. Wright arranged for the refreshments which were served by Ed Helt, Sam Kimpel and Greg McNany.

Those holding tickets were: Mr. and Mrs. Glenn R. Hemsworth, Mr. and Mrs. Pete Ebert, Robert Rice, Mr. and Mrs. J.O. Fans injured when stands collapse

Victory speeds Luchessi recovery

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The best medicine in the world for a baseball manager is a victory.

And that's just what the Texas Rangers gave Frank Luchessi upon his return from the hospital Sunday.

Luchessi, who had been hospitalized as a result of a fight with second baseman Len Randle, returned to the ballpark and watched his Rangers whip the Houston Astros 11-7 in exhibition baseball.

Luchessi arrived just in time to watch his team stage a five-run, game-winning rally in the sixth inning. Bert Campaneris, who helped rescue Luchessi from Randle's blows last Monday, delivered a two-run double in the rally.

The game was marred by injuries to 17 fans when a walkway section caved in at Driller Park in Tulsa, Okla. The collapse of the walkway occurred when rain stopped the game in the second inning. The fans sought cover under a grandstand section and the walkway collapsed under too much weight. No one was seriously hurt.

In other spring training action, Al Cowens hit a grand slam homer in the eighth inning to break a tie and carry the hot Kansas City Royals to a 7-3 decision over the Baltimore Orioles. The victory was the Royals' seventh straight.

Luis Melendez lined a two-run double in the eighth inning, leading the San Diego Padres to a 6-5 victory over the Oakland A's. The Oakland A's "B" team fared better, beating the Milwaukee Brewers 9-7 as Rich McKinney knocked in two runs with a homer and a double.

Ken Griffey smashed a grand slam and George Foster homered with two on, powering the Cincinnati Reds to a 7-6 decision over the Philadelphia Phillies.

Wayne Garrett scored on Warren Cromartie's single in the fifth inning and three Montreal pitchers combined to blank New York on five hits as the Expos nipped the Mets 1-0. Rookie right-hander Mike Krkwo pitched seven shutout innings and Ivan DeJesus blasted two triples, pacing the Chicago Cubs past the San Francisco Giants 3-0.

Te' Simmons hit a solo homer and Keith Hernandez scored on an error in the fourth inning as the St. Louis Cardinals beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 2-0. The Pirates' "B" squad edged the Toronto Blue Jays 3-2 on a two-run single by Fernando Gonzales in the sixth inning.

Chet Lemon's run-scoring single in the ninth inning off relief ace Bill Campbell enabled the Chicago White Sox to edge the Boston Red Sox 4-3. Ben Oglivie hit a two-run homer to pace the Detroit Tigers to a 5-0 victory that snapped the New York Yankees' four-game winning streak.

Rick Monday and Steve Garvey slugged homers and Tommy John hurled seven scoreless innings, helping the Los Angeles Dodgers beat the California Angels 3-0. Bill Stein drilled a triple and two singles, leading the Seattle Mariners to a 6-3 victory over the Cleveland Indians.

Rod Carew and Larry Hise each hit two-run homers in Minnesota's five-run third inning, helping the Twins beat the Atlanta Braves 12-8.

In an off-the-field development, Kansas City released pitchers Roger Nelson and Jerry Cram to their Omaha farm club and at the same time put right-hander Steve Busby on the 21-day disabled list.

TRACK'S A DIRTY BUSINESS — Art Schlichter of Miami Trace looks like anyone except Mr. Clean at Saturday's Chillicothe Relays. Schlichter stumbled after a hand-off in a relay race and wound up sprawling in the mud. Although Schlichter looks like he had his problems, Miami Trace had an extremely satisfying meet, tying perennial SCOL champion Circleville for second place.

Reds answer publicly to Rose

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is a news media release from the office of the Cincinnati Reds. So much has been printed in behalf of Pete Rose's negotiations that the Reds organization felt they would make their side public as well.

CINCINNATI, Ohio — The Cincinnati Reds, which traditionally have held to the belief that salary negotiations between the ball club and players should be confidential, are making public details concerning negotiations between the ball club and Pete Rose.

"We arrived at this decision," said Dick Wagner, executive vice president and general manager, "because over the years Pete has used the media to negotiate his contract. The club has always taken a low profile approach to making negotiations public. The past few months have seen many half-truths and incorrect things published by the media. We simply want to set the record straight. We feel our offers are fair."

"We have great respect for Pete's ability, but we have to maintain fiscal responsibility so that the Reds and baseball can avoid the problems that killed the World Football League and the American Basketball Association.

"We feel a need to state these things so that our fans do not get the impression we are compromising our commitments to good baseball in Cincinnati for years to come."

The Reds are presenting their side of the apparently stalemated negotiations in an open letter that was being sent to all Reds' season ticket holders and which appeared in paid ads in Sunday newspapers in Cincinnati and Dayton.

Key points covered in the open letter included:

—Numerous stories in the newspapers said Rose was unable to get more than a one-year contract offer from the Reds while, in truth, a two-year contract was offered and a three-year contract was discussed as far back as September.

—Rose told the Reds he would sign a two-year contract totaling $450,000. When the ball club, which had been offering a total of $425,000 agreed to the higher figure, Rose said he had changed his mind and wanted more.

—Rose's next demand was for $400,000 annually, a figure from which he has never budged throughout months of negotiations. The ball club, on the other hand, has continually increased its monetary offers. The most recent (as of March 30) was $265,000 annually for two years, plus deferred income that would provide Rose with a $70,000 annual salary at ages 47, 48, 49 and 50. An alternate proposal from the club would pay Rose $325,000 for the first year of a two-year contract with the second year providing $265,000 salary and deferred income of $70,000 at ages 49 and 50. The offer of $325,000 is an increase of $137,000 per year over his 1976 salary.

—Rose has not only refused to budge from his demands of $400,000 per year, but has given the ball club an ultimatum that if the club does not agree to that figure by Opening Day, his demands will increase by $25,000 every month until the All-Star break.

Springfield North steals Class AAA state crown

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Sandra Fullen and her unbeaten Springfield North mates spoiled the "me, too" show in the 1977 Ohio girls high school basketball tournament.

Class A Delphos St. John's and Class AA Warsaw River View, by winning the other championships Saturday, duplicated previous state basketball titles by their boys. St. John's had won in 1949 and River View in 1975.

Columbus Walnut Ridge's girls, riding a 44-43 lead with little more than three minutes left, were ready to make it another title double. The Scots' boys ruled the state in 1971.

Then North turned the lights out on Walnut Ridge's dream. The Panthers outscored the Scots 12-1 down the stretch to snatch away the title 47-44 and wrap up a 25-0 season.

It was no surprise to their coach, Rollie Schultz. "Our kids have come back all year when they've been down," he said. "They play when they have to play."

Carol Smith, Walnut Ridge's coach, took the Scots' second setback in 20 games hard. "No matter what our record was, losing the last one like this makes it a wasted season," she said.

Delphos St. John's mauled Mansfield St. Peter's 61-40 for the Class A laurels, wrapping up a 24-0 campaign. Warsaw River View, the AA queen, went 23-0 with a 41-38 verdict over Pemberville Eastwood.

"They didn't lack in anything," St. Peter's Coach Georgiann Mathews said of the Blue Jays, who step into AA competition next winter with four sophomores returning. "They move the ball. They're composed. They have board strength like crazy."

St. John's got 54 combined points from its sophomore quartet, Deb Elwer, Sue Youngpeter, Jeanne Arzen and Laura Grothoue. "I think we'll be able to play in AA next year," said Fran Voll, the Blue Jays' coach.

"We'll be back," promised Mrs. Mathews, who will build around 5-foot-9 freshman twins, Jane and Joan Cowdry. The Spartans girls finished 15-6 and second in the state, duplicating their boys' feat of the previous week.

Jane Sikes, River View's coach, paid tribute to Walt Harrop, who guided the Polar Bears to the 1971 boys crown.

"I didn't know much basketball when I came to River View," she said. "I sat in and watched his practices. You can see his influence on our team. His scouting reports were extremely helpful."

Judy Uher hit 16 points and Diane Baker 13 for River View, which built a 41-30 lead and then warded off a Eastwood rally. The Eagles finished with a 17-4 record and Eastwood Coach Betty Bruner was a realist in defeat.

"I think the other team wanted it a lot more," she said.

The two-day tournament drew 26,133, an increase of 4,121 over the opening event last spring in St. John Arena.

Danny Edwards wins Greater Greensboro Open

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Danny Edwards looked far beyond his first career victory — and he liked what he saw.

"This is an end to what I've worked for," the slightly-built, 25-year-old said after his frontrunning four-stroke triumph in the Greater Greensboro Open Golf Tournament.

"It's an end — and it's a beginning. It's a beginning to the goals and dreams I have. Now that I've broken the ice, maybe the others will come."

And those goals are the stuff of dreams.

"I feel I have the kind of game that is suited to the major championships. It's a consistent, solid game. I feel like I have built a consistent game on a good foundation, learning to qualify, then make the cuts, then play well. I feel it's a foundation that won't crumble — will keep me at a level of consistency."

"I've always set my goals high. I'm thinking of a consistency in the major championships, maybe setting records of consistency ..."

He paused a moment. Here I am, I've just won my first tournament and I'm talking like this."

He returned to the dreams of the game's major events — a dream that is at least one step closer now. His Sunday victory, the first of his three-year career, not only provided him with $47,000 from the total purse of $235,000, it also:

—Gave him an exemption from qualifying, his first, at least through 1978.

—Put him in the prestigious Tournament of Champions.

—Secured him a ticket to Augusta, Ga., and this week's Masters, the first time he's been eligible for that exclusive event.

Edwards built a four-stroke lead through the first three rounds and protected it with a solid, par 72 in the last round. The tournament was played under gray skies and the threat of rain that hung over the wet and soggy, 6,984-yard Forest Oaks Country Club course.

He won it with a 276 total, 12 under par, and was only challenged twice, both times by George Burns.

Evert spoils Billie Jean's comeback

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Chris Evert's 6-0, 6-1 victory over Billie Jean King in their first meeting since Ms. King's comeback may have looked like an easy triumph. But the 22-year-old tennis queen says the match was a mental squeaker.

"I really didn't know how to feel playing Billie Jean," Miss Evert said after her victory Sunday in the finals of a $110,000 international tennis tournament. "The name 'Billie Jean' and what she's done in tennis is very intimidating."

In the women's competition at Hilton Head Island, S.C., Miss Evert claimed the $25,000 top prize with her usual patient baseline game, placing her shots deep in the corners and holding Ms. King far away from the net.

It was Miss Evert's 106th consecutive victory on clay.

Another face of Broadway Joe

NEW YORK (AP) — The rickety elevator puffed its way to the fifth floor and out stepped Broadway Joe Namath — deeply tanned, sun glasses perched on top of his head, casual in blue jeans and a red sweater.

A freckle-faced tyke, who had been doing a cereal commercial in an adjoining studio, recognized the famous quarterback and burst from the grasp of his mother.

"Hey, Joe," he said, "can I have your autograph?"

The kid had on a sweatshirt with a big "32" on the front and back — the number worn by O.J. Simpson.

"You've got the wrong number, kid," Joe said. "What's your name?"

The boy told him, then asked for another autograph for his brother, Robbie, who was in school.

"Sure," said Namath, pleasantly, signing away.

The great man was 65 minutes late for his date to film a clothes commercial.

Joe, who had just flown into town from Miami where he had taped a cosmetics commercial the day before, was apologetic. Nobody was mad.

Then a news photographer and newsman came into view. There were pointed questions about his purported move to the Los Angeles Rams. Joe's jaws became a vise. His body stiffened. The door of communication slammed shut.

Another face of Joe Namath. Broadway Joe never has been comfortable around newsmen, even those he respects. He acts like a man who has been stung once and does not intend to be stung again. Suspicion is there, mistrust and, at times, flagrant dislike.

Everyone envisions him as a swinger — one of the Hollywood set, big on booze and broads, night crawler, frequenter of all the smart places with a gorgeous creature hanging on his arm.

It is an exaggerated picture. Namath is no Little Lord Fauntleroy. As any 33-year-old bachelor, he is not immune to strong drink and pretty girls. But he is basically shy and inclined to be a loner. Friends say he is happiest when he has a fishing pole or a No. 3 wood in his hand.

He exudes an earthy kind of warmth which seems to project through the television screen — thus his success with that medium. He relates to kids.

Friendship Is the Message

FRIENDLY EXCHANGE—Harry and Cappy Morgan, left, talk with Romania's President and Mrs. Nicolae Ceausescu in Bucharest. The president invited Friendship Ambassadors, the Morgans' cultural exchange program, to participate in Romania's centennial celebrations this year.

By RANDI ROSENBLUM
NEW YORK (AP) — Harry Morgan is a man who likes to make things grow. Starting with an idea about international friendship and a lot of energy, he has built a cultural exchange program that has helped sponsor 10,000 young American dancers, singers and musicians on performing tours abroad.

In the last five years Friendship Ambassadors, Morgan's latest experiment in grass roots international relations, have performed in Poland, Romania, Yugoslavia, India, Russia and Czechoslovakia, where it all started.

On a trip to that country he noticed that many people were fascinated by Western music. "They couldn't speak the language but they could sing Simon and Garfunkel," he said. "I realized that music is a powerful, if not the most powerful, means of communication."

Thousands of young Americans travel every summer and Morgan, who has always felt that travel should have a purpose, decided to put that wanderlust to use. In 1971 he got permission to give free concerts in Czechoslovakia, and the program took off from there. In 1974 Friendship Ambassadors started bringing foreign performing arts groups to the United States.

"We spend a great deal of time getting across the idea that this is not just a concert tour — this is an experience, a learning experience," said Morgan, who feels that music helps break down cultural barriers.

"It's only human at the end of a concert to go up and shake hands and say thanks," he said, "and that starts the dialogue."

"There is something that is magical about the performing situation," added his wife, Cappy, who works with him on the project.

The couple remembers that when they first took American groups to Romania in 1972, the only thing most Romanians knew about the United States was from three television programs shown there — "The Flintstones," "Columbo" and "The Untouchables."

"When we first went to a Romanian village to perform, the village priest had to beg people to take us in," said Mrs. Morgan. "Most families didn't want Americans in their homes. They thought we'd come with guns and knives."

But, she said, word that American kids were okay spread rapidly and "now we're really welcome in these villages."

Romanian President Nicolae Ceausescu has invited the Morgans to send their Friendship Ambassadors groups to help celebrate Romania's centennial on May 9 this year.

Although the ambassadors program is relatively new, Morgan has been in the people-to-people business for more than 20 years. As a young man just out of high school he hitchhiked across country from his home in Salinas, Calif., and flew to the Netherlands to join relief workers after floods had inundated that country in 1953.

Afterward, he decided to raise money to bring a young man and young woman he had met while in their country to the United States to see what America and Americans were really like.

This program, which he called Ambassadors for Friendship, grew into home-stay-oriented summer tours of the United States for foreign students attending American universities.

Friendship Ambassadors has a staff of seven, including Morgan as president and Mrs. Morgan as vice president, treasurer and executive director.

Masters & Peasants A Pleasant Surprise

MASTERS & PEASANTS. By Theodor Kalifitides. Doubleday. 178 Pages. $6.95.

One of the things that makes book reviewing worth the effort is the occasional sleeper that comes along. A sleeper is a book that comes in cold with no advance notice and is written by someone whose work the reviewer knows little, if anything, about. It is a book which promises little but happily delivers much.

Such a book is Theodor Kalifitides' "Masters & Peasants," a novel which the author says really isn't a novel but is called that. "Simply because what I present here is my own picture of reality, and not reality itself. I can lay no claim to that. No more than anyone else can."

The book takes place in and around the small Greek village of Ialos, during the Second World War. After valiant resistance, Greece has fallen to the Nazis and Ialos, like many other villages, is occupied by the invaders.

The German occupation is what binds this story together but this is only a small part of the whole story. For Kalifitides freely roams back and forth through racial memory, telling of the glories of ancient Greece with the misery of the contemporary Greece of the book serving as counterpoint.

The result is most engrossing, most satisfying. The author does a fine job of describing the mores of village life, but he is best at describing the people who live in and are Ialos. There is, for example, Lolos the village idiot, who is no idiot at all but who deliberately sought out that role in order to protect himself from the hurts which can be inflicted by society. There is the pharmacist, a frustrated man who "had studied pharmacology in Paris where he wrote a doctoral dissertation on the medicinal value of the dandelion." Add to these, the portraits of the butcher, the priest, the mayor and all the rest and the result is a full-blooded portrait.

Unfortunately, Kalifitides has a tendency to slip occasionally into moralizing asides on the nature of political systems. When he does, the natural flow of the book stops and this is irritating. But, all in all, "Masters & Peasants" is a nice surprise.

Work Reviews 80 Years of Best Selling Books in U.S.

80 YEARS OF BEST SELLERS: 1895-1975. By Alice P. Hackett & James H. Burke. Bowker. 265 Pages. $14.95.

Think back, try to remember. 1941. A time when on "One Sunday afternoon toward the end of the year, when most American families had their radios tuned to the Philharmonic, came the stunning announcement that the Japanese had attacked Pearl Harbor."

It wouldn't take much, if any, prodding for most Americans to remember Dec. 7, 1941, but it probably would take a bit of doing to get them to recall the titles of some of the best-selling books in the country that year. For those who just can't remember, the top fiction best-seller was A.J. Cronin's "The Keys of the Kingdom." Leading the nonfiction list was "Berlin Diary," by William L.

Shirer.

In this most informative volume, which is a history of sorts as seen from the best-seller lists, the authors have covered the years from 1895 through 1975 by listing the 10 top-selling books of each year and following this with a terse but fact-filled summation of what happened to highlight that year. A unique, but most interesting, way of presenting a bit of minor social history to the reader.

The book starts with the year 1895 because, obviously, that was "the year in which the first American best seller lists were published." The leader of the fiction list was Ian MacLaren's "Beside The Bonnie Brier Bush." What led the nonfiction list isn't told, since that list wasn't started until 1912. In addition to the year-by-year breakdowns with the accompanying historical sketches, this book also offers a plethora of other book lists, each with appropriate comment by the authors. For example, those interested in finding out what book tops the "crime and suspense" list will discover that Mario Puzo's "The Godfather" leads the pack with 12,140,000 copies, but right behind and occupying the next seven places are novels by Mickey Spillane.

There is plenty of material here to absorb both those who like to play the numbers game and those interested in finding out what Americans were reading over the past 80 years. Either approach, or a combination of both, is rewarding.

ALCOHOLISM

NEW YORK (AP) — University of North Carolina laboratory researchers say they have accumulated evidence "linking alcoholism — and the likelihood of becoming an alcoholic — to a hereditary, biological factor." The studies show subjects with higher levels of a naturally occurring blood enzyme — DBH — get a greater "lift" from alcohol, and therefore drink more than persons with lower levels of the enzyme. The DBH level in each individual is relatively stable and is related to the person's genetic background, say the researchers.

High cost of dying under scrutiny

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Americans spend an estimated $4 billion a year on funerals and burial arrangements, and a growing number of people are asking whether the buyers are getting their money's worth.

"There are few, if any, purchases where the ultimate consumer is so disadvantaged or where his or her normal bargaining power is so diluted in a situation of such immediate need," said the Seattle regional office of the Federal Trade Commission after a study of funeral and burial costs.

On a nationwide basis, the FTC has proposed a series of regulations designed to give people more information about funerals and to protect consumers against unscrupulous operators.

Many funeral directors have said the regulations are unnecessary. They say only a few of the nation's 22,000 funeral directors are unscrupulous. "The FTC is trying to smear an entire industry for things that occur in a tiny fraction of cases," said Robert D. Williams, president of International Funeral Services, Inc., of Des Moines, Iowa.

A growing number of people, meanwhile, are searching for less-expensive funerals — and finding them. The federal Consumer Information Center said that in just over six months it received 20,000 requests for "The Price of Death," published by the Seattle office of the FTC, despite the fact that the booklet costs $1.05 and is one of the most expensive items distributed by the center.

The National Funeral Directors Association, representing about 14,000 funeral directors, said the average funeral in 1974 cost $1,207. That does not include expenses for the cemetery, flowers or a grave marker which can add another $800 or so. About half the funeral homes conducted less than 100 funerals a year, the association said, and the average funeral director made $18,700.

Here are some guidelines about what to look for when planning for a funeral and burial:

THE FUNERAL CEREMONY

Funeral ceremonies are not required by law in the United States, but they have become a custom of most families.

Funeral ceremonies can be held in a funeral parlor, a place of worship or a private home. The ceremony may be conducted by the funeral director, a clergyman or a friend of the deceased. Churches make no charge for the use of their facilities for funeral services; clergymen usually receive an honorarium, ranging up to about $75. The difference between a funeral ceremony and a memorial service is that the former takes place before burial, with the body present, while the latter is conducted without the presence of the deceased.

PRICING

There are several pricing methods used by funeral homes: single-unit, bi-unit and itemization. Single-unit pricing means the customer is given one figure which includes everything. Bi-unit pricing means the funeral home divides its bill into two sections, one for services and one for the package. Funeral homes which itemize provide a list of the major components of the funeral and the cost for each one.

Some funeral homes provide services on a "cash advance" basis, paying third parties such as florists directly and billing customers later. Find out if there is a service charge for cash advance items.

THE CASKET

The price of a funeral is usually determined by the price of the coffin and can run from $100 to several thousand dollars, depending on the material used and the type of lining. Sealer caskets are usually more expensive. They are designed to be airtight or watertight, but they do not prevent decomposition of the remains.

EMBALMING

Replacing the blood with embalming fluid preserves the body for several days. It has no long-term effect. The FTC notes that embalming requirements vary from state to state.

THE GRAVE

There are about 9,000 active cemeteries in the United States, according to the Seattle office of the FTC.

More than one-third of the cemeteries are privately owned and operated; the rest are run by municipalities or nonprofit groups and may be cheaper. There also are 103 national cemeteries, about half of which have openings for additional burial of eligible veterans and some family members.

As with coffins, charges run from $100 into the thousands. Cemeteries usually charge $150 to $250 for opening and closing the grave.

THE GRAVE MARKER

Grave markers are available from the cemetery where burial will take place or from an independent dealer. The first thing to decide is the type of material. The most common ones are bronze and granite. The granite is the cheapest.

The marker can be elaborate and placed upright at the grave site or it can be simple and flush to the ground. Cemeteries may have requirements as to materials and size. Check the rules before buying.

The inscription also affects the price. A standard, granite marker, laid flat on the ground, about 12 by 24 inches, usually includes a two-line inscription, including the person's name and the birth and death dates. Prices run from about $75 up. Installation is extra.

Eligible veterans or their families can get a head stone or grave marker from the Veterans' Administration at no charge. The benefit includes the marker, the inscription and transportation to the cemetery. It does not cover the installation fee.

Ohio Perspective

New phone listings law pushed

By ROBERT E. MILLER
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Widows who continue to list their husbands' names in the telephone book for security reasons could not take advantage of a new law under consideration in Columbus.

They could continue listing the deceased husband, but could not have their own given name combined for a joint listing under the bill offered by Rep. Terry M. Tranter, D-24 Cincinnati.

His bill, now being studied by the House Insurance, Utilities and Financial Institutions Committee, requires telephone companies, at the request of a customer, to also list the name of the customer's spouse. There would be no added charge.

Tranter said his bill follows a pattern already set by New York and Wisconsin, and that two Ohio companies apparently are about to initiate the practice on their own.

Cincinnati Bell, the Cincinnati lawmaker said he understands, already has decided to give its subscribers the extra option, starting next year. Ohio Bell has announced a joint listing option will be available immediately.

Rep. Claire M. Ball Jr., R-91 Athens, raised the question about widows who continue to list their husbands in the books to guard against crank calls and an obvious belief by criminals that a woman head of a household represents an easy mark.

Tranter told the committee his bill is very broad in its present language, but that he feels it would not accommodate giving sanction to the listing of persons known to be dead. Many women in such situations often list the initials of their given names, he pointed out.

The sponsor, an attorney, also said it was not intended that two persons living together out of wedlock, or housemates not kin to one another, could be granted double listings. For one thing, he said, both parties would have to have the same last names.

Tranter said the bill has been the reaction of many casual observers to his bill, he feels it will mean fewer pages in phone books and result in savings to the telephone companies.

He suggested the books list each last name only once under a single heading, such as "Smith", and then proceed to list names of spouses such as Charles and Mary, 401 Park Place; Don and Alice, 643 Newlon Ave., and so on.

Tranter's bill is expected to receive another hearing in the House committee this week.
